

Agenda

Roundtable on Transformative Reparations for Sexual Violence Crimes in Conflict Settings: Building New Conceptual Frameworks

The University of New South Wales
Faculty of Law, Staff Common Room
Tuesday, 12 May 2015, 9:30 – 17:00

TIME	AGENDA
9:30 – 9:45	Welcome Andrea Durbach, Director, Australian Human Rights Centre, Faculty of Law, UNSW
9:45 – 11:15	Transformative reparations Chair: Sarah Williams, Faculty of Law, UNSW Project overview and theoretical framing: Fraser's trivalent model of justice Louise Chappell, School of Social Sciences, UNSW Case studies: reports from South Africa and Cambodia Andrea Durbach and Emma Palmer, Faculty of Law, UNSW
11:15 – 11:30	Tea/coffee break
11:30 – 12:30	What are the risks, limits and potential of reparations? Chair: Louise Chappell, School of Social Sciences, UNSW Presentation by: Frédéric Mégret, McGill University, Canada
12:30 – 13:15	Lunch
13:15 – 14:15	Panel: What is transformation? Chair: Gabrielle Simm, Faculty of Law, University of Technology Sydney Theoretical framing of 'transformation' Emily Waller, School of Social Sciences, UNSW Addressing the causes of violence against women Jacqui True, School of Social Sciences, Monash University and Sara Davies, Faculty of Law, Queensland University of Technology Human rights and violence against women: perspectives from 'on the ground' Liesl Gerntholtz, Human Rights Watch

14:15 – 15:30	Panel: Reparations processes: design, institutions, politics, implementation Chair: Gerry Simpson, Melbourne Law School, Melbourne University Design of the ICC reparations mandate Jonathan O'Donohue, Amnesty International State engagement with judicial reparations Sarah Williams, Faculty of Law, UNSW The Timor Leste experience in implementing reparations Lia Kent, ANU College of Asia and the Pacific
15:30 – 15:45	Tea/coffee break
15:45 – 16:45	Panel: Approaches to reparations and beyond Chair: Andrew Byrnes, Faculty of Law, UNSW 1325: Women, Peace and Security Agenda Laura Shepherd, School of Social Sciences, UNSW Symbolic reparations and the use of art and other forms of expression Olivera Simic, Griffith Law School, Griffith University Psycho-social responses as reparation Susan Rees, School of Psychiatry, UNSW
16:45 – 17:00	Rapporteur wrap-up Hilary Charlesworth, Centre for International Governance and Justice, Australian National University

This research is supported by an Australian Research Council Discovery Project (140102274). For more information on this research, please visit: <http://www.ahrcentre.org/topics/transformative-reparations-combat-sexual-violence-against-women-post-conflict-settings>.

For your information:

UNSW Human Rights Centre Law Lecture presents:

“Rescuing a pacifist sensitivity in international law”

Presentation by: Frédéric Mégret, McGill University, Canada

Wednesday, 13 May 2015, 6:00-7:30pm
Staff common room, level 2, Faculty of Law
The University of New South Wales
<http://www.ahrcentre.org/node/687>